This particular example was born in a very rare specification indeed.

One of only 12 examples ordered new to the UK with flared wheel arches. In addition the car was specified with Campagnolo alloy wheels, a full leather interior and electric windows, all of which are detailed on its original factory invoice, of which there's a copy within the cars dedicated history file today.

Even more special is that this Dino was one of only eleven ordered with Nero paint from new, in this case, over a desirable Beige VM 3218 leather interior, offering its next custodian a great opportunity to one day return it to this very rare specification.

It's presented today in very good condition throughout and complete with a well documented history file, original books including its original blue warranty card (very few examples retain this), original pouch, tool roll, spare wheel, wheel chock and Ferrari 'Red Book' Classiche certification binder which confirms the car still retains its original chassis, body, engine and gearbox.
