Freshly prepared for sale by marque specialist Classic Motor Cars (CMC) who went through every detail and carried out such items as installing a complete new wiring loom, rebuilding the carburettors and fuel pump, overhauling the fuel system, rebuilding the front and rear braking system mechanisms, overhauling the suspension plus much more. The sixth-to-last SS100 built, still retains its original engine, is believed to have only covered 52,350 miles from new and is complete with one of the most comprehensive history files we've ever seen which includes its original buff logbook.
