Only 7 right-hand drive Daytona Spyders were ever built and are today known as 'The Magnificent Seven'.

This particular car is the lowest mileage and only remaining original example of them all. A very well-known car that was delivered new through Maranello Concessionaires to Mr Dudley Mason-Styrron and then subsequently sold through Graham Cook to Led Zeppelin drummer John Bonham in 1980. After John's death later that year, his widow Patricia sold the car back to Graham who would go on to keep the car for the next 36 years.

In 2016 it was purchased by a highly respected UK based collector, who continued to maintain the car without regard to cost whilst ensuring none of its originality was lost.

A true time-warped, preservation car that benefits from unbroken history and ownership that reflects some of the UK's most discerning and knowledgeable individuals in the collector car world.
