This beautiful left-hand drive example is the 38th RS produced, and therefore, one of the first 500s built to â€˜RSHâ€™ specifications, which means itâ€™s constructed of a lighter gauge steel (the same as the 2.7 RS â€˜Lightweightâ€™) to meet FIA homologation requirements. After having been driven to Stuttgart for weighing, it was driven back to the factory for completion as a â€˜Touringâ€™ (Porsche Code 472) version. It was highly equipped from new, with such factory options as front and rear bumpers with impact absorbers (Code 058), leather trimmed Recaro sport seats (Code 409), a rear luggage compartment in place of rear seats (Code 419), white fog-type head lamps (Code 429), a right-hand comfort seat (Code 438), an electric radio antenna and four speakers (Code 461), green-tinted side glass and a graduated tint windscreen (Code 468), an engine compartment light (Code 482) and a sunroof (Code 650). Restored to a very high standard, total matching number example, painted in its very rare original colour combination. With the performance closer to a Lightweight yet the comfort of the Touring, this example is the best of both worlds, with a huge potential for future appreciation, superb!
