The DB AR1 was designed by the world's leading coach builders and design house Zagato; whose historical connection with Aston Martin dates to the 1960s with the first special bodied Aston Martin being the iconic DB4 GT Zagato.

These distinctive motorcars, also known as the American Roadster 1 had a production run limited to just 99 cars worldwide. Mechanically the car used Aston Martin's six-litre V-12 engine producing 420 bhp, with an active sports exhaust system. The interior features include; full Bridge of Weir leather interior, electronically controlled seating with adjustable lumbar support. Additional features fitted to our car include; Touchtronic transmission, leather head trim, aluminium switches, power-fold mirrors, roadster alloy wheels, fire extinguisher and first aid kit.

Our highly collectable 2015 AMOC Concours class winning example is complete with its leather binder that includes its; owners guide, service records, dealer directory and an individual numbered DB ARI book personally signed by former CEO of
