An Alloy-Block Disc-Brake Roadster is considered to be the ultimate spec 300 SL and only 210 of this type were ever produced.

This particular example is a full matching number car, including not just its original chassis, body, engine and gearbox but also its front and rear numbered axles. Very few cars can boast such as many of the Alloy-Block cars had their engines replaced in period.

#003162 has been in single ownership for the last 34 years, presents exceptionally well throughout and is offered complete with its Hardtop, fitted luggage, original factory data card which confirms its full matching number status plus dedicated history file.
