The Ferrari 812 Superfast was, at time of launch, the ultimate expression of Ferrari's naturally aspirated V12 lineage, a grand tourer with supercar performance, engineered for those who demand both blistering speed and long-distance capability. Unveiled at the 2017 Geneva Motor Show, the 812 Superfast represented a significant leap forward in Ferrari's GT philosophy, delivering unparalleled power, presence and precision.

Powered by a 6.5-litre naturally aspirated V12 paired with a lightning-fast 7-speed dual-clutch F1 transmission, producing 789 bhp at 8,500 rpm and revving all the way to 8,900 rpm, making it one of the most powerful front-engined Ferrari road cars ever at that time. Capable of 0-60 mph in just 2.9 seconds and a top speed of over 211 mph.

This particular example was specified new with the following factory options and features that include; carbon fibre drivers zone with LEDS, carbon fibre steering wheel with dreamliners in Giallo, carbon fibre centre console, carbon fibre dashboard
