A very special Ferrari Enzo. Car number two off the production line and shown by the factory at Ferrari Racing Days, NÃ¼rburgring, Germany in August 2002 where it was driven by Ferrari F1 World Champion Michael Schumacher. Delivered new to its first owner in 2004, an Italian gentleman with whom it would reside with for several years before being imported into the UK in 2014. Since which time it’s been part of the quintuple of Ferrari supercars with one private owner before being recently split up. These very early production Enzo’s were F40 like, with the carbon weave being very evident on the body panels. This particular car has that weave more evident than any other we have handled, a sign of its originality. It is also still complete with its original handbooks including the important service/warranty supplement, pouch, spare key, Ferrari torch, car cover and OEM battery charger.
