A very late production series V variant that is well known withinÂ Aston Martin circles and has come directly from long-term ownership, where it was residing with some other very famous examples from Newport Pagnell. The car was well restored around 15 years ago and has recentlyÂ been the subject of a revitalisation by marque specialists. It is accompanied by an expansive and fully detailed history file, tool kit, workshop manual and factory brochures. This example is oneÂ of only 70 ever produced, which makes the model the rarest from the David Brown era, even more so than the DB4 GT. This is aÂ car that would satisfy the most discerning collector and enhance any collection!
