The 2010 Porsche 911 GT3 RS Gen 2 is a facelifted variant of the 911 GT3 RS Gen 1, but whilst visual enhancements remained simple, the more prominent changes made to the Gen 2 consisted of slightly firmer suspension, better aerodynamics, upgraded interior, a revised Porsche Communication Management System (PCM 3) and perhaps more importantly the 3.6L flat-six engine found in the older model was replaced by a new 3.8L flat-six, which resulted in a power increase to 444bhp, which was 35 additional horsepower over the Gen 1. It was also fitted with a titanium rear muffler and exhaust tip, as well as a lithium-ion battery to save weight, meaning it weighed in at 11lbs lighter than its predecessor and with the result of its weight savings, additional power and improved gearing the Gen 2 can deliver a tremendous 0-60mph in 3.8 seconds, a 100mph in 8.1 seconds and a top speed of 193mph!

This particular example has only 7,362km and 1 registered owner from new. Supplied new via Porsche Zentrum Limburg in Germany and finished in a Paint To Sample (PTS) Black with contrasting Guards Red factory graphics & wheels, a black Alcantara interior and the larger bucket seats. It has the desirable Clubsport option that consists of a roll cage, hand-held fire extinguisher and a 6-point harness for the driver, which still accompanies the car today. Other factory options include Porsche Ceramic Composite Brakes (PCCB), the all-important front suspension lifting system, 90-litre fuel tank, sport chrono package plus, carbon package, rear centre console in carbon fibre, Porsche Communication Management System including extended navigation system (PCMS), preparation for mobile phone, sound package plus, cruise control & floor mats.
